

PLANNED DEVELOPMENT PERMIT

APPLICANT'S GUIDE TO PROCEDURES

WHAT IS A PLANNED DEVELOPMENT PERMIT?

A Planned Development Permit is the mechanism to implement density transfers and allow clustering of dwelling and commercial units. It provides for diversification in the relationship of structures, lot sizes, and open spaces in a planned fashion in conformance with the General Plan and with any modifications or exceptions from the normal zoning and subdivision requirements justified to achieve an integrated plan which accomplishes a density transfer or reduces adverse economic, social, or environmental impacts. A Planned Development Permit may be granted with the requirement that certain conditions be met. In order for it to be determined that the applicant intends to complete the development within a reasonable time, that the development conforms to the General Plan, and that any modifications or exceptions from normal requirements are justified, an application for a Planned Development Permit is subject to Planning & Building Services review, which may include preparation of an environmental document, and is subject to a public hearing. If your project is determined to have no significant environmental effect or to be exempt, no further review is required. If it is determined that a Negative Declaration is required, one of two fees will be charged depending on whether the Negative Declaration is prepared by staff in the Planning & Building Services Department or by a consultant. These fees are listed in the attached fee schedule. After the document is prepared it is circulated for public review for a period of 30 days.

If an Environmental Impact Report (EIR) is required, one of two fees will be charged depending on whether the EIR is prepared by staff in the Planning & Building Services Department or by a consultant. These fees are listed in the attached fee schedule. After preparation, the EIR is circulated for public review for a period of 45 days.
